IMPOSTOR ATTEMPTS TO PALM OFF WORK OF DEAD MASTER.

Out of hundreds, of musicians throughout the country who entered the ontest for the $500 prize offered by Ignace Jan Paderewski for the best orchestral composition submitted to an impartial jury of musicians of nation Laker, Arthur Shepherd, has triumphed. Mr. Shepherd received official notice yesterday in a letter from New York that he had won the prize. The prize was offered last summer by the great planist. Mr. Shepherd decided to enter the lists. From that day od to enter the lists. From that day to yesterday he had no intimation of the honor that was to be his.
"Overture Joyeuse" is the name of the composition which captured the Boston, Dec. 4, 1905,-Arthur Shepherd, Esq., 49 Main Street, Salt Lake City, Utah.—My Dear Sir: I enclose herewith a copy of the award of the judges in the Paderewski competition of this year, by which you will see that the prize of $500 in this class of or-chestral works has been awarded to the composer of your piece, the "Ouver ture Joyeuse."

Please accept my best congratulations on this result.

Will you be good enough to send me a statement in regard to your birth, to make sure that you quite come within the conditions of the fund before we send you the many and the send you have send you the money. I should also be glad if you will give me some account your musical education, which it will interest us all to know about; and what are the musical conditions of your city, and the work that you are

It is un-derstood that an effort will be made to nduce Paderewski to continue the prize ontests annually.

There were two other prizes, each of $500, offered for the best composition for chorus and orchestra and for the best plece of chamber music, but the judges considered that none of the offerings in these lines was of a sufficiently high standard to deserve the premium.

Park City, Dec. 8 .- Yesterday aftern Park City, Dec. 8.—Yesterday afternoon an accident occurred at the Daly-Judge mine which will stand in the history of mine accidents here as one of the most miraculous escapes from killing ever had by men. The winze being run between the 1,200 and the 1,400 foot levels was the scene of the accident, and at this point a small engine is used to hoist and lower materials. Three men, Thomas Wherry, John Carvill and Dan Stevenson are working on the morning shift in the winze and a man named Peterson is top car-man, while the engine is cared for by John Tonkins. Just at quitting time car-man, while the engine is cared for by John Tonkins. Just at quitting time resterday the shift started to come up from below and were on the man-way, at the same time the truck used in hoist-ing timbers was being lowered for the ing timbers was being lowered for the next shift.

In some manner this part of the machinery jumped the track and stuck in one of the timbers on the way down. Peterson saw the condition of things and accordingly went down to release the caught truck. Connections are made with the cable and all cars to be taken up or down by means of a hook and the lowering truck was attached in this manner. Peterson on going below dislodged the deralled truck and set it upon the rails, but in doing so unknowingly left slack enough in the rope to unhook the truck from the cable. As soon as the truck was put upon the track it started, and in an instant was onto the upcoming shift. All three of the men were caught and knocked down to the bottom. The result was that each of the men coming up was injured, but the miracle of it was that they were not killed, for the fall after being struck would ordinarily have resulted in death without the force of the runaway car. The men were taken up and brought to the Miners' hospital, where they now are and from reports given out by nurses and physicians will be around in a few days.

Today being the feast of the Immaculate Conception of the irgin Mary, appropriate services were held in the Catholic church. Masses were celebrated at the usual Sunday hours and a large congregation was in attendance. Rev. Thomas Galligan, pastor of St. Mary's church, officiated and at the late mass delivered a fine sermon upon the day and its signification to Catholics generally. This evening the usual benediction will be sung and instructions given.
